

news"War is not an entertaining show". A lecture by Gervasio Sánchez

17 Feb 2016

The "100 YEARS OF PHOTOGRAPHY" Days take place between February and June and go in line with the centenary celebration of the School of Art of Granada [1] coinciding this year, 2016.

On the occasion of the anniversary, the School of Art of Granada has programmed these Photography Days which propose a reflection on the photographic gaze from a modern multidisciplinary approach. It addresses, as well, the current situation of this artistic discipline from different fields like, for example, photojournalism, advertising and fashion, cinema or architecture, highlighting the role of Photography as a vector of social, cultural and artistic discourse.

The first activity during these days is the lecture of the photojournalist, Gervasio Sánchez, and takes place on Wednesday, 17 February at 18h00 in the Aula Magna of the Faculty of Philosophy and Arts.

Prestigious Photography professionals will participate in these Days during which will impart Master Classes together with public lectures with the main objective of sharing their experiences and privileged view regarding Photography with the students of the School of Art and the University of Granada. Moreover, several photographic exhibitions of the invited speakers are programmed.
